ABOUT THE TOUR

This study tour will explore midwifery practice both in Australia and Sri Lanka. Together, we will examine traditional, cultural, and contemporary approaches to care, and consider how these compare to current issues experienced by Australian midwives.

How does the role of the midwife shift across different contexts? Is Midwifery remaining focused on 'normal' as the practice context of our profession and the populations we serve continue to change? What contemporary challenges are shared by our Sri Lankan counterparts and what is unique to the settings in which we provide care?

Throughout the study tour, you'll have the opportunity to learn alongside your midwifery colleagues and grow your professional network, regardless of your career stage.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

- Examine research trends that impact care for women and their newborns, including the latest evidence emerging from the Australian context.
- Reflect on the broad and evolving role of the Midwife in both Australian and international settings, and consider your future professional goals through networking and discussion with fellow midwifery colleagues.
